During his explanation Mr. Hopper's hand happened to touch the coat sleeve of Mr. Hammerstein. Oscar turned upon him with an expression of ferocity.

"Keep your hands off me," he commanded. "Your hands ofn't belong and my shoulders."

Magistrate Cornell said that he could not see where Mr. Hammerstein had a case. Oscar persisted. He wanted to know if he had to go back to Forty-second street and tell his patrons that his theatre was unsafe.

Magistrate Cornell repeated his advice that the District-Attorney be consulted; whether he was friendly with Mr. Hammerstein or not. Unable to get further, action, in the police court Oscar made tracks for the law offices of Mr. Hummel.

Magistrate Cornell suggested that in a criminal libel proceeding it would be well for Mr. Hammerstein to consult with the District-Attorney. Oscar's eyes almost popped out of his head. "How can I?" he asked, tragically. "Why, Your Honor, he's against me." Mr. Goldsmith volunteered a statement, but was shut off by Mr. Hammerstein, who proclaimed that he could do all the talking. He repeated his charges against Mr. Hopper until Magistrate Cornell expressed a desire to hear the other side.

Mr. Hopper said that the matter was purely a department record; he had no personal knowledge of the alleged violations and had made no direct charges usgainst Mr. Hammerstein. He said that she his little chance of recovery. She had heen demanded by the District-Attorney.

During his explanation Mr. Hopper's n not rouse her he called a patrol wagon and had her taken to the station-house.

There she revived for a few minutes and gave the name May De Vere.

When the ambulance surgeon arrived the girl was unconscious. The young doctor, after hearing the police report, diagnosed the case as alcoholic comm. For twenty-four hours she was treated as if suffering from this malady before it was discovered that she had cerebro-spinal meningitis. When Policeman Fetscher went to the hospital today to take his prisoner to court he tearned that the young woman was a victim of the dreaded malady and that she has little chance of recovery. She had not been draking.

There is nothing in the young women's clothing that gives any further clue to her identity. The police of Hobeken have neen asked to look up her frichds and advent.

Donlin hit to deep right for three bags and Strang scored him with a short single. McGann hit to short and he and Strang went out on double play. Sohwarts to Hallman to Dickey. Hall was out, Hallman to Dickey. ONE RUN.

The Tennessee Derby, with $5,000 added, was won by Capt. Sam Brown's Agile, who was at the prohibitive price of 1 to 4. John Simulski, at 8 to 1, was second, and Jack Lory was third, Only three started.

nade for J. Morgan Smith and his wife, brother-in-law and sister of Nan Patterson, powerful friends in Cincinnati. When they were arrested their combined assets amounted to $3.74. Now they have one of the most prominent firms of criminal lawyers in the city actively engaged in trying to keep them out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts.

It is reported along upper Broadway, where the approaching trial of Nan Patterson is discussed in all resorts patronized by theatrical and sporting people, that the money which is said to have been sent to Cincinnati for the aid of the Smiths was contributed by a prominent Tammany polideian. His interest in the case is said to have been aroused through a woman who knew Nan Patterson and Caesar Young.

woman who knew Nan Patterson and Caesar Young.

The woman, the report has it, is convinced that Nan Patterson did not kill the bookmaker, but she thinks that J Morgan Smith bought the revolver with which the killing was done. Consequently she has determined to bend her efforts to keep Smith away from New York, and to that end has obtained the financial support of the Tammany man. She is said to have told persons who knew of her interest in Nan Patterson.
